

das had gone quiet in the night. By morning there was only the drippi eaves.

A full-page illustration of a woman with short, reddish-brown hair and bangs, walking towards the viewer down a long, brightly lit hallway. She is wearing a white short-sleeved jumpsuit with a V-neckline and wide-leg trousers, and white pointed-toe shoes. She holds a white clipboard in front of her chest with both hands. A black bag is slung over her right shoulder. The hallway has light-colored tiled floors, white walls with green door frames, and a blue ceiling with recessed lighting. A speech bubble is positioned in the upper right corner of the image.

Room four needs his ei
o'clock. I'll round the e wing first.

Leave, said the part of her that always left. She found she could not make her feet agree.

She had walked past that branch every winter morning. She had never once seen it bloom.

